

Announcements for the Week of September 23, 2018

From me to you ...

A friend asked me one day last week how my prayer life was going. He knows me well, so I knew I couldn't get away with a breezy "Great!", I really had to tell him. So, I admitted it was a little sketchy these days, that somehow I just didn't think God cared very much about my needs, especially given how much He was needed elsewhere, that I'd get by. (See how foolish I am!)

"Did you notice the rainbow yesterday after it rained?" he asked me. "Oh, wasn't it beautiful!" I remarked, thinking the subject had changed. And then, he said, "You just did it." "Did what?" "You just prayed."

Prayer is talking, in all the myriad ways we communicate—words, certainly; touch, thought, spontaneous sounds of delight or sorrow, so many ways. And even if we don't believe anyone's listening, or cares, believe Someone is and does. Just keep on beating a path to God's door, because, even with halting and unthinking prayer, the God Who's listening will finally come. The door will open—still again. It always does.

See you in church Sunday!

Mrs. Evelyn
