

Announcements for the Week of October 28, 2018

From me to you ...

I read this in a daily blog feed I receive and thought you might find it inspirational. Frederick Buechner is the author.

“In Beauty and the Beast, it is only when the Beast discovers that Beauty really loves him in all his ugliness that he himself becomes beautiful. In the experience of Saint Paul, it is only when we discover that God really loves us in all our unloveliness that we ourselves start to become godlike. Paul’s word for this gradual transformation of a sow’s ear into a silk purse is sanctification, and he sees it as the second stage in the process of salvation. Being sanctified is a long and painful stage because with part of themselves, sinners prefer their sin, just as with part of himself the Beast prefers his glistening snout and curved tusks. Many drop out with the job hardly more than begun, and among those who stay with it, there are few if any who don’t drag their feet most of the way. But little by little—less by taking pains than by taking it easy—the forgiven person starts to become a forgiving person, the healed person to become a healing person, the loved person to become a loving person. God does most of it. The end of the process, Paul says, is eternal life.”

See you in church Sunday.

All Saints’ Sunday—Names Needed

We gather names and add them to a book, a lasting memorial that is displayed in the Cathedral on All Saints’ Sunday. Forms for submitting the names of those who have died within the past year are now available. You can place these in the offering plate or in the basket on the ushers’ table. Names can also be emailed to communications@kccathedral.org. Deadline for names is October 30.
