FROM THE DEAN

Light at the Doorstep

The other morning as I made my way up to St. Luke's Hospital, a bit of brightness was interjected into an otherwise dreary day. As I skirted around the northeast edge of the Plaza, I noticed that those famous strands of lights lining roofs, facades and towers were lit. Popular lore is that the Plaza lights are usually tested in the wee hours in the weeks prior to Thanksgiving night. I counted myself lucky to have had this moment of pre-season light therapy and cheer.

This year, as the dark half of the year settles into northern latitudes, the darkness seems heavier. The terrorist attacks on Paris are but a grim reminder that so many people worldwide are vulnerable to the gruesome whims of fanatics and madmen. Even the most peaceful of places are easily shattered by outbreaks of destruction and murder.

Safe and secure homes and communities are common desires. Refugees streaming out of harm's way are a tragic reminder of this longing to live in safety. The night of the shootings, as Paris was in lock-down and transportation services were not running, residents of the city welcomed stranded strangers into their homes. Here was a moment of light in the City of Light.

In preparing for Christmas the Mexican community has a custom called Los Posadas. This ancient practice involves processions featuring characters playing Mary and Joseph that go from house to house each night from December 16 to December 24. Just as Mary and Joseph wandered the streets of Bethlehem seeking shelter for the night, the company moves from house to house, seeking accommodation.

In the nights of Los Posadas, those at each house visited by the procession are the "innkeepers." When the band of pilgrims carrying lanterns arrives at a doorstep, they sing a song reminding those inside that it is Joseph and the pregnant Mary who stand at their door. The band of wayfarers is invited into the house for prayers and celebration. The company then moves on, a little larger perhaps than when it arrived, to sing its song about opening up and welcoming what is holy into the next place.

In the days ahead, let's look for the Light that shines in the darkness. In a world beset with troubles and tragedy — in our own lives with their cares and woes — the light does shine. It comes to the doorsteps of our hearts and community, seeking shelter, looking for a place to abide. May we have both the courage to open the door to this Light, and then, to bear this Light with us wherever we find ourselves.

Gratefully,

Peter

Treasurer's Report

In October, income for the Cathedral was in line with last year's numbers, as slower pledge receipts were offset by better endowment income. Expenses ran somewhat higher this year, but the difference occurred mostly in the utility area which can vary substantially from month to month. Overall the net total was slightly more negative in October 2015 than last year. However the financial situation at the Cathedral is still much better this year than last.

This can be seen by looking at the YTD numbers through October. Income on a YTD basis is up modestly over last year, as pledge payments have come in faster this year and endowment income is also modestly higher. The important difference this year is on the expense side where the expenditures are well below last year. The difference is primarily in the administrative and property areas. The lower expenses in these areas means that the Cathedral has kept the deficit to a negligible amount through the time of the year when income receipts tend to be low. Thus it is likely that the Cathedral will have a modest surplus in 2015 vs. the modest deficit that occurred in 2014. While there are many moving parts to the cost of running the Cathedral, the impact of weather stands out. This year's mild winter drove a great deal of our better financial condition. Thus it is important not to be too complacent. The mild weather of early 2015 could easily give way to less favorable conditions in the next few months.

As such, members of the congregation are asked to remember to complete their pledges in 2015 and to prayerfully consider the needs of the Cathedral in making a pledge for 2016.

Episcopal Community Services

Please join us with your gifts by making a donation online at www.episcopalcommunity.org/promise.

A Message from Beau G. Heyen, President/CEO

Throughout my life, I have felt a calling to provide a voice to those "at-promise" in our community. As a counselor in South KC's Hickman Mills School District, I learned that it was important to remove the stigma of being "at-risk," changing the language from risk to promise. My focus became on our role as a community to provide needed resources and assistance to deliver on the promise of every person's right and ability to be a contributing member of society.

This focus, shifting to building positive relationships and opportunities for success, continued as I grew my professional experience in Dallas, Houston and NYC. Returning to Kansas City, my belief in providing the most dignity and respect possible to those in need has only grown.

Food is our most basic need. Yet often, we expect those who are hungry to pull themselves up, go to work, go stand in line to fill out paperwork, contribute to the world around them...and then we will feed them.

If we can provide a nutritious meal in a safe place we can impact their overall well-being and change their lives. The meal we provide, free of from red tape, can give them the strength to interview for that job, the compassion to parent a teenager, or the physical ability to lift boxes at work.

Starting in 2016, through our partnership with Hope Faith Ministries, Kansas City Community Kitchen will not only serve lunch, but will also begin serving breakfast. To further create a safe place, full of dignity and respect, we will be switching to a restaurant-style service model, assigning volunteers to each table as waiters and hosts.

This is where we need you! Your support allows us to keep our promise: to keep our plates full of nutritious food and our neighbors engaged in a safe, supportive network of volunteers, social service providers and community partners throughout the Greater Kansas City area.

Advent 2015

Moravian Lovefeast

December 20, 5 p.m.

This service of carols, Scripture lessons, candle lighting and sharing over special buns and coffee provides an hour of peace before Christmas. The music includes familiar Advent and Christmas hymns, as well as Moravian Christmas hymns and anthems. Canon Musician John Schaefer and Cathedral Chorale Director William Baker are gathering singers and instrumentalists for the Lovefeast.

Holding Lovefeasts is a Moravian tradition dating back to the early eighteenth century. In 1717 a group of Moravian exiles were so moved at a celebration of Holy Communion that they stayed on to talk about the experience in small groups. Impressed by their piety and devotion, the German count on whose lands they had taken refuge, had food brought to them. The Lovefeast, inspired by this 1717 gathering and rooted in the early Christian practice of agape (love) meals, has been a part of Moravian practice ever since. Lovefeasts can be held at any time, but are often celebrated around major festivals such as Christmas, Epiphany, Easter, and Pentecost.

In offering the Lovefeast we seek to reach out to Moravians in the Kansas City area where there is no organized Moravian congregation. The Episcopal Church and the Moravian Church in North America are in full communion. We welcome this opportunity to share in this rich tradition received from our ecumenical partners. The Lovefeast is also offered for persons looking for a spiritual home. Coffee and buns in church? Why not?

The lighted, multi-pointed stars hanging in the Cathedral chancel and Founders' Hall are traditional Moravian Stars. It is customary that they be displayed and lighted from the First Sunday of Advent through The Epiphany, January 6.
