FROM THE DEAN

Tending the Garden

The last question in the final examination I took for a required course on the Book of Common Prayer when I was in seminary asked, “Is there any prayer or liturgy you would add to the current Prayer Book?” The courses that have been most meaningful to me are those through which I have been encouraged to ask questions that endure, and that foster continual renewal and reevaluation in my thinking about the world.

During the Easter season, those who participate in The Way (our form of the Catechumenate at the Cathedral) engage in what is called Mystagogia—unpacking the mysteries. This is the “What does this mean?” portion of adult Christian formation. Now that the Way group has experienced the mystery of faith through the death and resurrection of Christ, the telling of salvation history, and the celebration of Baptism and Eucharist at the Easter Vigil it’s time to see how the life of faith connects with one’s own life.

A couple of years ago during Mystagogia the question was asked about what could be added to the baptismal liturgy. One idea that struck a resonant chord was to add this promise to the Baptismal Covenant: “Will you do all you can to protect the beauty, diversity and wonder of God’s creation? I will, with God’s help.”

Christian thinker, author and activist, Brian McLaren, in his book, The Great Spiritual Migration includes the ten commitments from the 2013 Mesa Document and Charter for a Just and Generous Christianity as discerned by the Convergence Network. Fourth in that list is this: “We seek to reconnect with the earth, to understand the harm human beings are doing to it, and to embody more responsible, regenerative ways of life in and with it.” In terms of the mission of the church in our time this commitment couldn’t be more timely.

On the first Earth Day in 1970 my sister and I walked the five miles from our home to our high school.

It was an era of budding foment: urban riots and unrest, the disruption of the Vietnam War and dire predictions of looming environmental disaster.

Later that spring I participated in a several day exercise around imagining a future for the troubled planet. A select group from our high school was convened to imagine what our priorities might be for the future. We were guinea pigs for an innovative process being designed for use in businesses and organizations. Over several days we commandeered the Sunday School rooms at the Presbyterian church where we distilled our ideas, hopes and fears using newsprint, magic markers and masking tape. The net result after all that effort was that we saw a future where planetary salvation involved serious and widespread organic gardening! Away with paving over creation and poisoning it with chemicals. A return to a gentler, less exploitative mode of life was in the water that year. We drank from its sweet spring.

As I look back to that time I realize how prophetic we had been in those pastel painted rooms looking out over the graves of forebears who had carved out small farms from forest land during the early eighteenth century.

Today, as a congregation in our downtown location, I believe that part of our calling is to discern how we can find ways as people of resurrection faith to restore the world around us. Our take on the good news must include demonstrative acts that preserve and protect the earth and all its creatures.

Start thinking. When we gather to discuss McLaren’s book on May 7, come with your ideas about how we can tend to God’s garden as people of new creation. This comes in the baptismal water we all share and speaks to the foment of our time churned up by deregulation and social and environmental planetary crises.

Treasurer's Report

Grace & Holy Trinity's Financial Status as of March 2017

	2017	2016
Income	$ 407,099	$ 414,742
Expenses	$ 386,612	$ 417,125
Net Total	$ 20,487	$ (2,383)

Through the end of the first quarter, income to the Cathedral was down slightly as higher pledge receipts and user fees were offset by a smaller draw on the endowment. Expenses for the first quarter were also down versus last year, primarily in staffing. The new music director started in February, the new property manager started in March, and the National Church has been reimbursing a portion of the Dean's salary as he is out on disability. Thus the first quarter had lower expenses for the staff than we will experience quarterly for the rest of the year. The net result was a moderate operating surplus for the first quarter.

Conversations With Scripture: The Parables

By: William F. Brosend II

*"I love to tell the story,
it will be my theme in glory,
To tell the old, old story,
Of Jesus and his love."*

Since before Aesop and beyond Garrison Keillor we humans have loved to tell and listen to stories. And Jesus loved to tell stories, too. His stories—the parables—were told to make his listeners think and learn about their relationships with each other and God. But neither the reference points nor the settings Jesus used are familiar to us. With the help of the historical and cultural background and scholarly detail in Conversations with Scripture: The Parables members of the WBS will attempt to make sense of talents and mustard seeds, shepherds and Samaritans and to explore the relevance of the parables in the twenty-first century.

WaterJustice Conference: A Recap

The WaterJustice Conference presented by the Trinity Institute, Trinity Wall Street church, in New York City, and live-streamed here in Founders' Hall on March 22-24, 2017, provided a rich education about water, and the myriad global issues in pressing need of attention—ranging from the question of “Who owns the water?” and the role of the private sector and governmental responsibility, to the impact of climate change and environmental degradation/pollution, and the impact on the lives of so many communities throughout the world that do not have ready access to clean running water, something we take so for granted.

Highlights of the Conference included:

- Lively opening worship at Trinity Wall Street, with the preacher, Winston Halapua, the Archbishop of Polynesia, on Wednesday evening; conference participants were joined by our participants in The Way as they ate their meal.
- Keynote Address by Barbara Boxer, who until last year was a senator from California and a leader in environmental initiatives.
- Excellent video presentations, ranging from well-known theologians to people from various places around the globe speaking to their particular challenges of accessing water.
- Lunch in Founders' Hall on Thursday, co-sponsored by the United Nations Association of Kansas City and attended by many from that group, featured a speaker, Claire Cook-Callen, from water.org, an international NGO based here in Kansas City that funds water access projects throughout the world.

Information about the Conference speakers can be accessed at www.trinitywallstreet.org/trinity-institute/2017/home.

The Right Reverend Thabo Makgoba, Archbishop of Cape Town, South Africa and a life-long advocate for cathedrals as institutions of education, suggested we have forgotten the sacredness of water, reminding us that water does not come from the tap but rather from the river, from creation. In urging the church to educate and illuminate our congregations, and to stand against industrial practices that pollute, he poignantly reminded us that “we all live downstream.”

Ted Derrick was presented a cancer comfort quilt made by a group led by Kari O'Rourke during Lent.

2017 Annual Onesie Drive

Outreach Ministries requests gifts of onesies for the babies born at the birthing home in Haiti, Maison de Naissance beginning Sunday, April 30 and continuing through May 21. This year's goal is 230 onesies.

Reminder: Haiti's climate is tropical—very hot. So please, short sleeve onesies only and in sizes newborn to three months.

You may leave the onesies on the table in the tower. This is a great way to honor all moms on Mother's Day. Thank you for your generosity!

Hygiene Kits Donated

Over 5,000 units of personal hygiene items were gifted to Synergy House and Keeler Women's Center. These gifts are greatly needed in the community and will be put to immediate use/distribution.

Greetings from el Hogar

Greetings from el Hogar...the amazing Episcopal Church School in Tegucigalpa. It provides a home and education for approximately 250 students, a large number Myers' orphans, but all from financially poor backgrounds. The school offers first through sixth grade at the elementary school as well as offers advanced seventh through ninth grade classes at the tech school (metal works/welding), electrical and carpentry. The graduates are then able to obtain skilled labor jobs with many going on to higher education.

El Hogar is at the peak of summer, pre-rainy season. I am excited to be part of the team from Saint Luke's Anglican from Burlington, Ontario, Canada.

As always, there is work to be done. The screen printing shop produced 800 t-shirts for a marathon to benefit el Hogar. We did the short 10,000 steps (4.9km), equivalent to 47 flights of stairs, walk through the hills of Tegucigalpa. Sadly, I can report that I was passed by an el Hogar mother using a walking stick.

Lenten Outreach

The Easter offering, and a donation from outreach, made it possible to contribute $3,000 each to both Jewish Vocational Services and Episcopal Migration Ministries. Volunteers gave their time during Lent packing 300 family bags for BackSnack children over spring break. A total of 245 Easter baskets/bags were assembled and delivered to Sheffield Place, Crittenton Children Center and Kaw Valley Children Center. Volunteers assembled 58 hygiene kits and donated 755 pounds of food for the visitors at St. Mary's pantry. On several Saturday mornings, volunteers helped serve lunch at St. Mary's Pantry, helped at St. Paul's pantry in Kansas City, Kansas, and helped get diapers ready for distribution at HappyBottoms. And lastly, a group of quilters met every Tuesday night during Lent making five comfort quilts to be given to cancer patients. A special thanks to everyone who volunteered their time, gave donations and gave of their talents during this Lenten Season. "God blesses us, so we can bless others."

Outreach Appreciation

Outreach wants to recognize Marian Phillip during the month of May! Marian has been very active with Maisson de Naissance, The Global Birthing Center, since 2004. Marian has taken the leadership role of organizing all the onesie drives, which happens this year during the month of May celebrating Mother's Day. At the end of the drive, these onesies are sent to the birthing center in Haiti and given to each new born baby when they leave the birthing center to go home. This year's goal for the drive is 230 onesies. Marian is the point person for updating the Cathedral with Maisson de Naissance communication and is proactive in securing Outreach funds during Matching Grant Campaigns.

Marian spent three years working in Haiti during the 1980s at the Holy Trinity Episcopal Elementary School as the head administrative assistant. She spent those three years living with the Sisters of Margaret. One of Marian's many roles was being responsible for the scholarship program supporting tuition for all the students and opening up communication between sponsors and students. In these roles of responsibility, Marian had the opportunity to travel and visit all areas of Haiti.

Marian is also very active helping with the BackSnack program, volunteering at HappyBottoms, serving dinner at Sheffield Place and volunteering at the pantry for the Cathedral Apartments. Please congratulate Marian on her wonderful giving spirit!

Stephen Ministry: The "After People"

People often ask, "What exactly is a Stephen Minister?" One way to put it is that Stephen Ministers are the After people.

Stephen Ministers are there:

- after the phone call you hoped you'd never get.
- after the divorce papers are served and the bottom falls out of your life.
- after the funeral, when everyone has left and the emotions you've held at bay come crashing in on you.
- after the doctor says, "I'm sorry, but there's nothing more we can do."

Stephen Ministers are the "After People." They are ready to provide comfort and support for as long after as needed.

GHTC is a Stephen Ministry congregation and we are here for you. Please contact Canon Christy Dorn, 816.474.8260, or Karen Kissinger, 816.210.0302, to learn more about Stephen Ministry. All calls are confidential.
